

Dr Adwoa Issaka Bio is as follows:

Dr. Adwoa Issaka is a seasoned mining engineer with 14 years' experience in the mining industry. She holds a BSc, Masters, and Doctorate in Mining Engineering from WITS University, marking a historic achievement as the first black South African woman to earn a Doctorate in the field.

Adwoa's career is distinguished by her extensive and invaluable mining technical operational expertise. Her role as Unit Manager Safety at Goldfields reflects her unwavering dedication to enhancing safety standards in mining.

Over the past nine years, she has also conducted research on mineral-based sustainable economic development, deepening her expertise. Adwoa's unique strength lies in her ability at bridging safe mining practices with sustainable development, a principle she passionately advocates for.